How Each Suspect Is Eliminated

Wolfgang's time of death on April 4th is determined by solving the Pieces of Silver puzzle. The solution to the puzzle says: "Clarissa said beware pieces of silver times my victims plus number of disciples. That will be when they have planned my haceldama." We learn from the Judas Iscariot fact sheet that haceldama can refer to the place where someone dies.

Thirty pieces of silver (taken from the Judas Iscariot fact sheet) times 8 (number of Wolfgang's victims taken from newspaper clipping) plus 12 (which is the numbers of disciples taken from the Bible verse found from the Morse Code puzzle) gives you 2:52.

Mary Johns is eliminated as a suspect after scanning her work badge and examining her time clock punches. We see that on 4/4 she clocked in at 1:57 a.m., clocked out for lunch at 4:31 a.m., clocked back in from lunch at 4:58 a.m., and clocked out for the day at 11:33 a.m. So she wasn't on site at the time Wolfgang was killed.

Margaret Philips, Matthew Finch, John Bartholomew, Isabella James, Gavin Thomas, Clarissa Simon, and Thaddeus Mitchell are eliminated by their participation in the Dress Rehearsal which is a highly-coordinated escape effort that is planned out to the minute and relies on everyone's participation.

Dr Blackthorn is eliminated by the chat session with King's Court Technologies. We can't be sure that Dr. Blackthorn is the one on the phone at 2:48 when the power goes out at the asylum. However, when we go to the link provided by Simon Banks he addresses his post specifically to Dr. Blackthorn. The fact that Dr. Blackthorn was on the phone with tech support only to have the asylum descend into chaos as the Dress Rehearsal progresses makes it unlikely that he is the killer.

Also, by determining that Dr. Blackthorn was the one on the phone with King's Court Technologies, we learn that the one who changed the protocols for the wristband printer must be Dr. Andrews. Further strengthening the case against him is Simon Banks' assertion in the chat that the only reason to change the protocols would be "to keep someone from easily reading what was on the bracelet."
